One suspect still sought after murder on Maple Street

By Steve Marschke

Two Sacramento men have been arrested and a third is being sought after the fatal shooting of a man in a Maple St. apartment parking lot early Saturday morning.

The victim, 31-year old Maurice Drye of Sacramento, was a former resident of the complex at 617 Maple St. who was currently living at a different Maple St. address.

"We don't know why he was shot yet, although we can guess," said Sgt. Ed Hensley of the West Sacramento Police Department. He was someone we have had contact with before."

Hensley said the shooting took place in a part of the parking lot screened from general view by a boat. It occurred around 2 a.m.

"An officer was in the area and heard the shots and saw three people running away," he explained. "The three people got away, but through investigation, we have identified who they are."

Drye was found at the scene of the shooting and taken to the UCD Medical Center, where he died. Drye had been shot several times from a single handgun.

Richard Jones and Craig Hinton of Sacramento have both been arrested in connection with the crime and charged with murder.

Police are still searching for Rasinesh R. Singh of Brookfield Dr. in Sacramento. They believe him to be the third suspect.

Singh, also known as "Little Hindu," is 5' 9" tall, 140 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. He is 20 years old.

Anyone with information on the shooting or on Singh's location is asked to call the office of criminal investigations at the police department, 372-2461, or police dispatch, 375-6474.

Depression-era firehouse worth saving?

By Steve Marschke

Residents concerned with the impending demolition of an old firehouse on 3rd St. in West Sacramento will tour the facility today at the invitation of city officials.

"The city has allowed us to go into the building if someone can come up with a set of keys," said Lana Paulhamus of the West Sacramento Historical Society. "If we find anything of historical significance, it will be taken away and the rest demolished."

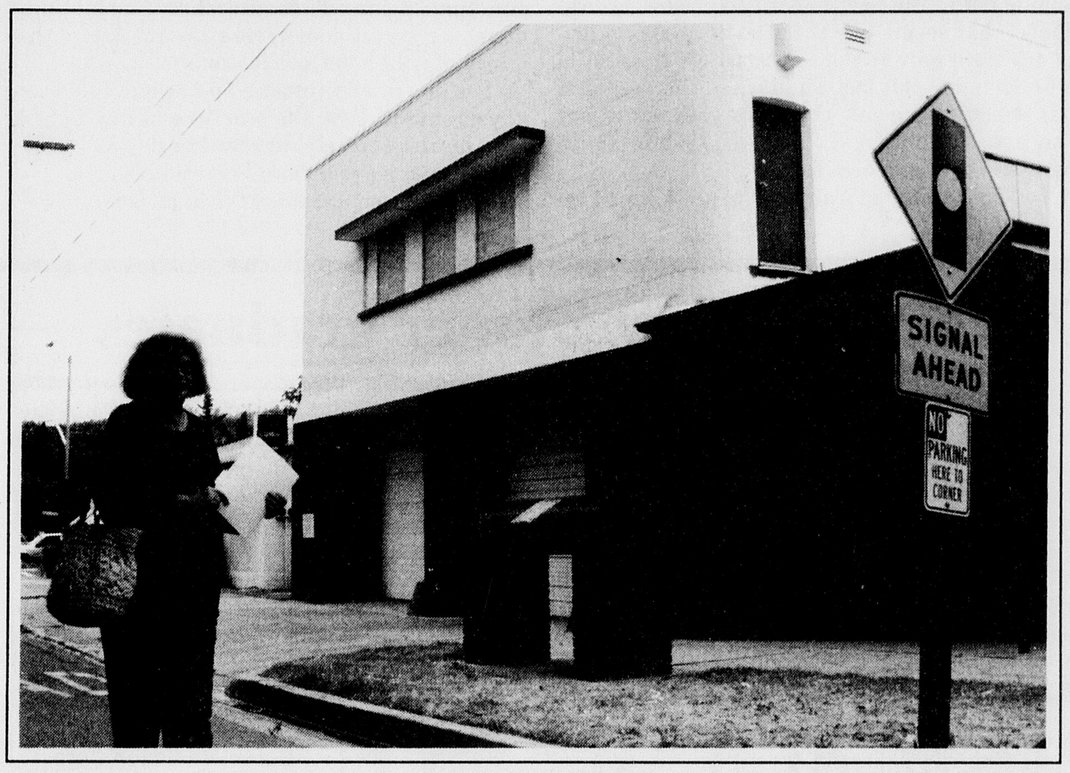

Paulhamus, though, believes that the city erred in failing to determine if the entire structure is of historical significance.

"This building was built in 1940 with W.P.A. funds (as part of Franklyn Delano Roosevelt's "New Deal" programs during the Great Depression). It was a New Deal program hoping to stimulate local economies to stimulate the national economy."

Built with shades of the "art deco" style popular during the '30s and seen elsewhere in the region at such locations as the Tower Theater in Sacramento, the brick former Washington Township firehouse shows off the streamlined forms of curved columns and flat faces.

It sits near the I St. Bridge, just south of the less distinctive building which had formerly been home to the West Sacramento Police Department (and before that, the Yolo County Sheriff's Department local substation).

The police have since moved to new facilities at Jefferson Blvd. and Triangle Court.

West Sacramento resident LANA PAULHAMUS stands in front of the former Washington Fire Department firehouse, located near 3rd and C streets. A bell used to hang within the bell mount out front. Residents will be invited to tour the city owned facility today (Aug. 20) to identify anything within it they believe to be of historic value. the building itself is slated for demolition, says Paulhamus.

Paulhamus believes that the old fire station would have its protectors in the community if only people knew it was in danger.

But an Aug. 13 city council agenda item calling for the building's destruction, she said, referred only to the "demolition of the old police station" -- which many people would interpret as meaning only the non-descript and unloved building adjacent to the old fire station.

"This agenda is very deceptive," said Paulhamus. "If they'd made the firehouse a separate issue, they'd have had more of a response."

Don Schatzel, the director of the city's parks and community services department who has been serving as liaison to Paulhamus and the historical society regarding the facility, was out of the office on Tuesday afternoon and could not be reached for comment.

Paulhamus said that her group has been in touch with the state's Office of Historical Preservation and other agencies, and that it is her belief that the city would be breaking the law by tearing down the disused firehouse without first determining that it has no historical value.

"Any building which is a public building, if there's any question of historical significance, there has to be some sort of report to substantiate preservation or destruction," she said.

Paulhamus invites members of the public to attend the tour at 3rd St. south of C St. at 5:30 p.m. today.

City must choose whether to pay $4.7 million or return land

By Sandra Larson

The City of West Sacramento has until Monday to decide how to respond to the recent jury award of $4.7 million to the owners of three parcels of land at 3rd and G Streets, condemned by the city to facilitate the building of the Money Store. The landowners contested the city's appraisal of $9.00 per square foot, and were awarded $41.00 per square foot by a Sacramento County Superior Court jury on July 25.

By August 25 the city must decide whether to pay the $4.7 million, to abandon some or all of the parcels (return the property to the owners and pay their costs), or to appeal the decision on the basis of judicial error in an effort to get a new trial. The amount of the award cannot be appealed.

Redevelopment Director Val Toppenberg said Tuesday that no decision has been made by the city. He previously estimated the cost to abandon the property at between $500,000 and $750,000.

While declining to speculate on the city's decision, Toppenberg acknowledged that any subsequent development of the property by the original owners would be restricted by waterfront zoning in accordance with the Washington Specific Plan.

Dennis Viglione, attorney for the owners of one of the contested parcels, said he would guess the cost of abandonment at "well in excess of $1 million," pointing out that the city has held the property for two years, has demolished all of the buildings, and that construction equipment has been parked there.

Viglione estimated the likelihood of a successful appeal by the city at about 1 percent. He said that while no trial is error-free, there was no error in this trial that materially affected the city's case.

Riverfront park to start construction Sept. 2

By Sandra Larson

Construction of West Sacramento's Riverfront Park is expected to begin several months early on September 2. A portion of the planned levee-top promenade will be completed in time for the opening of the Money Store building in January, 1988.

The Money Store will fund and construct the initial section, from the Tower Bridge to just north of the new Money Store building, and will be reimbursed by the city. Costs of accelerating the project, however, will be borne by the Money Store.

The next section of the riverfront promenade extending to the Broderick boat ramp is scheduled for completion by next fall. The city council approved the accelerated construction arrangement at its August 13 meeting.

UCD audits election, gives Yolo thumbs up

Yolo County Clerk Tony Bernhard has issued a press release stating that a UC Davis research team has analyzed the county's November election procedures and returns and found "no evidence of fraud, misconduct or error in the administration of the 1996 election in Yolo County."

The team consisted of six political science students under the direction of Professor Ed Constantini.

"It's nice to have someone from outside the system come in and check your work," Bernhard was quoted in his department's press release. "An outside audit like this, conducted by an independent, UC research team, should reassure anyone in Yolo County who has been concerned by allegations of fraud that have been raised in other counties."

'It's nice to have someone from outside. . . check your work.'

Tony Bernhard, Yolo County Clerk

The research report and the press release did not address a clerical error which affected the West Sacramento City Council ballot results during the election which Constantini's team audited.

The mistake caused the last-place finisher in the election, Marna Miller, to be reported as the first place finisher (who was eventually determined to be Mark Montemayor) in the first hours after the polls closed. Montemayor was initially reported to have finished last.

Survey ranks Raley's #1

The West Sacramento-based Raley's supermarket chain came out tied for first place in a Consumer Reports survey of customers of 35 different supermarket chains across the nation.

The results, gathered from polls of Consumer Reports readers, listed the 67-store chain as tied with the southern chain Publix for first place.

Raley's earned top marks for its cleanliness, courtesy and its bakery department, good marks for its checkout speed and its meat, deli and produce departments, and average marks for its prices.

The Safeway chain (which has over a thousand stores) tied for 13th position among the chains rated.

Among other western supermarkets mentioned Lucky tied for 21st among the national list and Albertson's tied for 10th.

Raley's headquarters building is at 500 West Capitol Ave. The company has a store in West Sacramento as well.

The August survey tallied responses from 19,000 readers of Consumer Reports, which does not accept commercial advertising and is regarded as the nation's most respected consumer publication.

Strike ends:

Brown trucks to flock back to roads

Workers at United Parcel Service, including those at the West Sacramento UPS distribution hub, are expected to be back on the job today after a tentative agreement between their Teamsters union and UPS management.

The strike lasted over two weeks.

Workers demanded raises and a shift towards more full-time employment; part time workers did not receive the same benefits and received a lower pay rate, making it less expensive for the company to use part-time labor than full-time workers.

As part of the agreement, the company will offer 10,000 more full time jobs as well as pay raises.

It won't be long before they're all back in school!

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

There are certain times of the year which most parents eagerly await. For some it's Christmas, when the house is colorfully decorated and the children can hardly wait to tear into their packages. For others, it's Halloween, when the kids look so cute in their little costumes, or Easter, when they seem so grown up in their very best clothes. Birthdays are always fun, too, but for this parent, the one day of the year which can never get here soon enough is back to school day!

Maybe it's just me, but this has been a particularly squirrelly summer and my kids (of which there are four) spent most of July and almost all of August bouncing off the walls and finding new and creative ways to drive me and their mother nuts. For example, this was the summer my daughter decided to spend her Sunday mornings helping out at the Sacramento Zoo. Now, at first glance, that seems like the kind of quality activity any good parent would encourage their child to undertake. But last Sunday, as she prepared to drive off to the zoo, the last words out of her mouth were, "And by the way, Dad, I'll be working with the carnivores today."

Now, on Sunday mornings, I usually try to relax in my favorite chair and slowly read the newspaper from one end to the other. Unfortunately, one simply cannot do that knowing his only daughter is out somewhere interacting with a bunch of wild lions and bears.

When she finally returned home and I had convinced myself that she was free of any fang or claw marks, I asked her how her day had gone.

"Oh, I had a great time," she assured me.

"Did you learn anything?" I inquired.

"Dad," she explained with amazement, not quite using these words, "you really haven't seen animal droppings until you've seen grizzly bear droppings!"

My sons have also gone out of their way this summer to make my life much more interesting than it needs to be. One has taken to sneaking out of the house late at night and leaving a blanket dummy behind in his place; another has started drawing his own anti-social and often blood-dripping comic strip; and the third, who isn't even ten yet, has somehow learned a number of cuss words I don't even use.

So, for more weeks than I care to admit, I have been eagerly waiting to hand my children back over to the overworked and underpaid teachers of our local schools. Each year, almost miraculously, they somehow manage to get all four of them back on track and interested in activities which won't cut another year or two off my life.

There is, of course, like everything else, a downside to back to school day. Among other things, the preparation alone can kill you. All the boys have, once again, grown at least two inches and although they don't particularly mind going off to school prepared for a flood, their mother does, and they all need new pants. They also need haircuts, book backpacks, pencils, notebook paper, folders, underwear, and worst of all, new footwear. (I still can't seem to get it in my head that shoes -- which only last about three months nowadays -- no longer cost $9.99 a pair like they used to when I was a kid. In fact, a person could almost spend a week vacationing in Hawaii for what it now costs to buy three teenage boys new tennis shoes.)

Anyway, when the glorious morning of back to school day does finally arrive, one is still not completely out of the woods. Among other things, six people suddenly all need to use the bathroom at the very same time; you have to make sure everyone knows the new hiding place for the house key; you have to somehow come up with all kids of weird combinations of nickels, dimes and quarters (which you don't have to begin with) to pay for milk money and assorted lunches; and for those who have decided to take a bag lunch, you have to referee the fight between who gets the desirable Jell-O chocolate pudding snack and who gets stuck with the dreaded fruit cup; and finally, you have to call your boss and explain you're going to be at least an hour late for work because it's the first day of school and your whole family is in chaos.

Is it all worth it? You bet it is! Anything just to be able to utter those five wonderful little words:

They're all back in school!

Question: when & where?

ANSWER: 3rd St., West Sacramento, in the 1920s. This was the old Washington Township town hall in what is now known as Broderick, West Sacramento. It was believed to have been situated on or close to the site now occupied by a former fire house now itself slated for destruction (see page one story).

Former Congressman dies at home —

Robert Leggett, a former eight-term Congressman for Yolo County and parts of Sacramento, Colusa and Sutter counties, died of an apparent heart attack at his Orange County home Aug. 13. He was 71.

Leggett served in Congress from 1963 to 1979, and in the state legislature from 1960 to 1962. A practicing attorney for 18 years, he also served in the U.S. Navy for two years.

In 1976 and 1977, Leggett, a Democrat, received federal investigators' attention during the "Koreagate" scandal. Married to Suzi Park Thomson, who had alleged ties to the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, it was alleged that he had received money from Koreans, but he was not charged.

While living with Thomson and his three children, Leggett also supported another spouse and two children in Virginia. He also drew fire for using public money to buy $3,000 worth of postage stamps on his last day in federal office.

Grant to study telecommunications —

From Melinda Posner
Community Relations
Redevelopment & Housing Agency
City of West Sacramento

Redevelopment Agency officials were informed last week that the city has been awarded a $35,000 grant to study expansion of the telecommunications infrastructure for the West Sacramento business community. The federal grant funds, awarded by the state Department of Housing and Community Development, will assist the city in the attraction and retention of new and expanding businesses.

Business recruitment is a city priority, creating and retaining jobs throughout the community. As part of its business recruitment program, the Redevelopment Agency provides information to companies considering a move to West Sacramento or an expansion of existing facilities. Companies usually inquire about common infrastructure, such as sewer, water and drainage facilities, but with the rapid expansion of computers and the use of data transmission devices, many businesses are concerned about access to advanced telecommunications infrastructure for their data needs.

Currently, telecommunications infrastructure in West Sacramento consists of fiber-optic facilities in the Port Industrial and Riverside Center area. The proposed study will help the city accommodate the growing data transmission needs of various companies.

The next step for the city is to retain a telecommunications specialist to review the city's current telecommunications capacity, project business demand for telecommunications service, identify the gap between the city's existing infrastructure and forecasted demand, and propose a strategic plan for implementing additional telecommunications infrastructure. The study will take three to six months to complete.

The Giants (70-56) continue to hold on to first place but the Dodgers are breathing down their neck. The Giants pitching took a turn for the worse last week as they sent Pat Rapp to the minors and Wilson Alvarez may miss his next start because of a shoulder problem. Both pitchers were acquired in trades a couple of weeks ago. Speaking of trades! The Dodgers, who already have a deep pitching staff, are looking for some hitting and to add some speed to their lineup. The Dodgers acquired center field Otis Nixon (47 stolen bases) from Toronto and then they sent pitcher Pedro Astacio to Colorado for second baseman Eric Young (32 stolen bases). These guys are very quick!

The N.L. West looks like its going to be dog fight between the Giants and Dodgers. They meet in a two-game series on September 17 and 18 at 3Com Park. The Giants will continue their long road trip to the East coast with three games in Pittsburgh and New York. The A's are at home this week against the Red Sox and the Indians come to Oakland for a three-game weekend series.

The 49ers embarrassed themselves 28-20 on Monday night in front of a national TV audience. I know it's pre-season, but the first string offense was pretty stale and the starting defense played like they were on vacation. Look for a better performance on Saturday in Denver (5 p.m., ch. 40) as the 49ers close out the exhibition season and prepare for their season opener August 31 at Tampa Bay. The Raiders look pretty good in their 18-16 victory against Mike Ditka's New Orleans Saints. The Raiders close out the pre-season on Friday (7 p.m., ch. 13) against the Arizona Cardinals and will open the season on the road against the Oilers in their temporary home in Memphis, Tennessee.

The boxing card at the Memorial Auditorium on Friday, August 22 featuring three undefeated fighters as added another up and coming fighter. Adan Reyes, the 1997 national amateur champion, with a record of 138 wins and only 9 losses will fight his second pro bout, a four-rounder.

One of undefeated fighters in the three scheduled 10 rounders is West Sacramento's Willie Jorrin (17-0, 9 KO's), who will tangle with Manuel Chavez (26-10). This is a big fight for Willie because if he wins this bout there's rumors of a big IBF title fight around mid-October at the Arco Arena or in Reno.

In the other 10 rounders, Diego "Chico" Corrales (16-0, 14 KO's) meets Stockton's Isagani "Two Gun" Pumar (26-8, 13 KO's) and Napa's Juan "El Marro" Arias (22-0, 17 KO's) battles Mexico's Javier Duran (14-6). Tickets are available at the Community Center Box Office and all BASS Outlets and priced at $20, $30, and $40.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Speak up or no one can hear you

What, exactly, is the big deal?

Why are so many people in West Sacramento so afraid to speak out on issues that concern them?

Time and time again, people will spout off in private about this or that city issue, saying that they really wish that West Sacramento would do things differently. But when asked if they wouldn't mind saying so in a published letter-to-the editor of the newspaper or some other format, the answer is usually "no."

Too often, they say that they are in some kind of sensitive position (such as running a business in this city) and that if they speak out, however genteelly, there will be severe repercussions.

This is a bit hard to believe.

Yes, sometimes there is some occasional retribution for speaking out on local issues and for "doing the right thing." when others are reluctant. But these consequences rarely measure up to what we expect them to be; more often there is a pleasant relief at having participated in democracy without having to shed blood afterwards.

If you disagree with public policy or your neighbors' political views, you can do so in a civil manner and your opponents will usually forgive you. Except in rare cases involving very heated matters, life will blandly go on. Business will go on. Personal friendships will go on.

What we should fear more than retaliation for our views is how things will be if we do not speak out.

They will be worse. Those with money and power will always get their way at the expense of those who don't, and the city will not, in the long term, prosper like it might.

Speaking out is much easier than it sometimes seems, and will almost certainly not carry the kind of costs with it that many people fear.

And although one voice alone, raised for what is right, can rarely make a difference, just think of the power of a hundred. Or a thousand.

Megan's Law is proving its worth in protecting our children

From Dan Lungren, Attorney General
State of California

In less than one month's time, the Megan's Law CD-ROM directory of nearly 64,000 California sex offenders has proved its greatest worth: protecting children from the horror of molestation.

Molesters have been caught. Sex offenders who refused to properly register with police have been located and arrested. Mothers have been alerted that men near their kids -- even boyfriends, in some cases -- are sex offenders. All this because California has finally lifted the cloak of anonymity that has shielded sex offenders from public view for decades.

But you might not know that from reading some newspapers. While we have seen front-page drama about the difficult implementation of Megan's Law, stories such as these have been given short shift:

A Sacramento County woman viewed the CD-ROM and noticed the photo of a man who regularly spent time playing with children, including her own, at a community swimming pool. She notified other parents, one of whom then contacted the sheriff's department. Sheriff's investigators found that the sex offender was not living at his registered address and was actually living with a woman and her three children -- a violation of his probation. He was arrested and now stands accused of molesting a 13-year-old girl at that residence.

In the Bay Area, a father viewing the CD-ROM confirmed that his ex-wife's boyfriend, with whom she lives, is a registered sex offender. The inquiring father's two young daughters also live with his ex-wife. She was unaware of her live-in boyfriend's conviction for child molestation. The father obtained a restraining order, barring the sex offender from any further contact with his daughters.

A San Diego grandmother, suspecting that her former daughter-in-law and mother of her four grandchildren had remarried a convicted sex offender, waited anxiously to check the database the first day it was available. "I said, 'what if he's a rapist?' and sure as hell, he was," the grandmother told the Associated Press. She said she planned to use the information to wage a visitation battle with the mother over the three girls and one boy, all under age 10.

While many newspaper accounts have reported -- justifiably -- that some sex offender information in the Megan's Law CD-ROM is outdated, that isn't even half the story.

In fact, the names of the sex offenders identified on the CD-ROM, and their recorded sex offenses, are accurate. Sex offender identities are the most important data, as the incidents above prove. So what part of the CD-ROM is outdated? Mostly, the news media have reported that the residence zip code is outdated for as many as 40 percent of the sex offenders in the database.

However, law enforcement openly said that from the outset. Tracking sex offenders who refuse to properly register with police has always been difficult. One reason is that a convicted sex offender who wants to keep police in the dark about his whereabouts will refuse to accurately register his location -- even though it means breaking the law. Just a few years ago, as many as 70 or 80 percent of convicted sex offenders had not properly registered. Since it was only a misdemeanor offense, there was little for the sex offender to fear.

But we've started turning that problem around in three ways: First, we toughened the penalty for failing to register -- it can now be charged as a felony. Second, we enacted the Three Strikes law, meaning prosecutors can often charge that felony as a second- or third-strike and put the sex offender in prison for a much longer sentence. Third, we launched an unprecedented state effort in cooperation with local law enforcement to track down "underground" sex offenders. Our state Sexual Predator Apprehension Teams are highly trained units, dedicated solely to locating and, wherever appropriate, arresting these dangerous individuals.

Not surprisingly, thousands more sex offenders have decided to properly register with police in the last few years.

Now, with the Megan's Law CD-ROM, law enforcement has the eyes and ears of law abiding people involved in this effort. Most sex offenders, fearful of the greater likelihood of being found and longer prison sentences, will choose to accurately register with police.

Still, we cannot kid ourselves. Some sex offenders -- particularly among the 1,600 "high risk" sex offenders who've committed multiple and/or violent sex crimes -- will opt to dodge the authorities no matter how tough or lenient the law. They are the most dangerous of all sex offenders, and they are perhaps the best reason for Megan's Law. If, because of their deliberate failure to register, we do not know where some high risk offenders are, we do know who they are and we know what they have done to others. Every citizen should be able to share in that knowledge to protect themselves and their families, even as law enforcement goes to greater lengths to locate and, where appropriate, arrest these criminals.

In the end, Californians should be relieved that at long last we have reformed our sex offender laws. Before Megan's Law, we kept sex offenders virtually anonymous to every one but the police, who in turn were prohibited from making even the most limited disclosure about them. The old laws, for example, made it illegal for police to even warn parents living near a park that a registered sex offender had been seen lurking there.

The real crime was keeping that information from parents. Megan's Law sets things right.

While they work overtime to cast doubt on Megan's Law, pundits and journalists should not forget what most of us know instinctively: if there is a question about publicly identifying sex offenders, the benefit of the doubt should go to those who merely want to protect themselves and their families form sexual assaults, not to those who have committed these vile crimes.

City hall suggestion

(Re: News-Ledger editorial, Aug. 13)

What about an Art Deco edifice like those in Miami Beach, Florida? This would diminish the dull, drab, dreary, dismal and depressing and brighten up West Capitol. Replete with theater, meeting rooms and exhibit hall. Let the motto be "Culture Comes to West Sacramento."

Goodby, Mr. Roberts

Our city shot itself in the foot again when we lost Steve Roberts as director of the Chamber of Commerce. We were fortunate to have a director who was responsive to the whole community and not just narrow business interests.

The only other chamber director I ever knew (in Redlands, CA) had a "Chuck Swift/Cal Worthington" type of personality but Steve was (still is) a class act. I don't know what went on behind the scenes, but I can guess Steve finally got fed up with all the political back-biting. A past News-Ledger editorial did address a legitimate policy issue but most of the public criticism of the chamber seemed either blatantly self-serving or downright nonsensical.

Personally, I always felt Steve was wasting his considerable talents working for the chamber. For every good journalist, there are a hundred (nay a thousand) glad-handing business types capable of small town P.R. work. Still we were lucky to have someone like Steve to steady the city as it took its first baby steps toward autonomy. I hope he still has a little ink left in his veins and returns to a newspaper career. But I know he'll succeed at whatever he does. Our very best wishes and a deep appreciation for a job well done go with him.

Land lawsuit

The recent $4.7 million that the Sacramento County Court ruled that West Sac must pay investors for then-blighted land opposite the new Money Store headquarters raises several questions:

1) If the Kwong and Louie families are mainly Sacramento families (non-Yolo), should the hearing have been held in a third, perhaps less partisan, county?

2) Will it cost West Sac about the same to return said property as to keep it when "other damages" are determined? (If so, West Sac should simply keep said land and make up the difference after Money Store is completed -- so that said land can be presented in more favorable setting.)

3) Since the arbitrary acquisition of land surrounding the old Broderick Market was done so at the insistence of the Money Store, it seems like a financial giant like Money Store should pick up the $4.7 million tab and -- with their financial advisors -- could probably more than get their money back.

4) If condemnation law does require that subject property be valued not "as is," but at its "highest and best use," on a date determined by the court, could this not set off a chain of even more speculative land buyings -- even by local governments -- of land in neighboring political entities...each trying to make millions off their neighbor government or businesses therein?

5) Since West Sac has the various advisory commissions -- from planning to recreation to aging -- is it finally time for a commission for real estate, or for budgets/financing? Since money is the lifeblood of business -- and political entities -- those entities who do not believe in letting public know where their money goes better not take charge of a hospital. They would say public has no right to know what condition their blood is in, right?

6) Does this latest action call for examination of "the right of the government to take property by/for eminent domain?" I thought this was for widening roads, extensions of same and for public utilities. Maybe if subject land had been taken without the announcement of the new Money Store headquarters, perhaps the court -- prior to Money Store's groundbreaking -- would have decided subject land was worth far less than $4.7 million for 2.6 acres, collectively.

7) Maybe this is a natural for developers Buzz Oates and Frank Ramos, since they like to "buy city property at city's cost" and city leaders like it, too.

8) Since city leaders are doing such a fabulous job, no shakeup is in order, right?

9) Do "laid-back" investors (those who buy property and just wait for property to rise in value) deserve same consideration as developers who buy land without value of rezoning and improve area by their actions?

Step forward, Money Store or (other) developers. And slow down the land grab, West Sac. (Maybe we can trade the old Vacation Inn properties...)

DMV records privacy

There has been considerable news media coverage recently about the sale of information from Department of Motor Vehicle driver license and registration records. Some reports have been confusing and inaccurate and have caused public concern. I would like to set the record straight.

Medical information in DMV files is considered confidential and is treated with the utmost sensitivity and security. Prior to a legislative change to the vehicle code this year, it was not released under any circumstances to anyone. It is now provided only to law enforcement/parking authorities checking for suspected abuse of the disabled parking placard privilege.

Social Security numbers are provided only to the California Franchise Tax Board and government agencies involved in such activities as administering child support programs, establishing paternity, or providing aid to families with dependent children.

This week's comment:

We opened the garage door to my mom's driveway on Alabama St. and you couldn't see past her front yard, because there were all these trailers, boats and motor homes all up and down the street.

It's starting to look like Rio Linda.

Isn't there an ordinance about this? If someone can help -- police, code enforcement, whoever, it would be appreciated.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered two feet three inches U. S. guage at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. The California Co-operative Crop Reporting Service in its issue of August 15th advises:

There has been no material change in the agricultural situation since the August 1st report. Weather conditions continued to be favorable to the development of unharvested fruit crops and to the growth of most annual crops. A few warm days were experienced in the interior part of the state as temperatures of 100 degrees and over were recorded, but on the average day temperatures have not been excessvie while night temperatures have been moderately cool. More than the usual amount of fog was experienced along the coast, while in the south-central part of the state a few showers of little consequence occurred.

Night temperatures during the past two weeks have been too low for the best development of rice, however prospects are still good. Irrigated beans are making good progress, while many unirrigated plantings are suffering from drought. Growing conditions for cotton continued to be excellent.

Grapes for table use are now being harvested in considerable quantities in the San Joaquin Valley. The season started earlier than usual and shipments up to August 12th were about 500 cars ahead of last season at this same date. Thompson seedless and Malagas have comprised the bulk of the movement so far, however some Muscats have also been shipped as well as a few Tokays from the Florin District of the Sacramento Valley. It is expected that Thompson seedless will be picked for raisins within the next week or so.

A great many landowners in the West Sacramento District, the Holland District and the Freeport District went to Woodland last Monday morning to hear the recommendations made by the Yolo County Tax Payers League to the Board of Supervisors for a reduction in the tax rate of the county. Indeed, so deep was the interest taken in the hearing that pretty near every large landowner of the First Supervisor District was present at the hearing. The residents of this district were particularly interested in the recommendations made by the league that no roads or bridges be built during the coming year. This was a great disappointment to the farmers of this section of Yolo County because they had been given many promises that the road from River View to Freeport along the river levee would be built this year. The late Supervisor Leinberger had often assured these landowners that the road would be built during the coming year and offered in palliation that the bond issue of one million dollars passed a few years ago had been used but that a direct tax would be levied in order to permit the farmers of the Freeport and Clarksburg districts a means of exit during the winter months. It often happens now that farmers of these districts during rainy periods cannot get away from their homes and it frequently happens that school children cannot attend the public schools because of the condition of the roads.

In this connection a clipping taken from the Woodland Democrat dated August 20th may be enlightening and may be of some consolation to the taxpayers of this district. The clipping reads:

Unless the supervisors are swayed to make a further retrenchment as a result of the twenty-seven recommendations of the Yolo Taxpayers' League which were presented Tuesday to the board, the new tax rate in the county will be $2.80. That sum represents a cut of 15 cents.

County Auditor R. P. Wallace has received no instructions since this week's figures as he is now preparing the items from which the Supervisors will officially fix the rate.

In the "Democrat" of last July 12th, over a month ago, the prediction was made that the rate would be reduced from $2.95 to $2.80. There are no indications today that there will be any further reduction.

A three-inch well lately sunk in the block bounded by 4th and 5th and by Harriett and Mary Streets at the instruction of Joe Pereira to a depth of 130 feet has been abandoned because children of the neighborhood plugged the well with crushed rock, sand and other building materials. This building material was removed by the drillers during the past few days but a greater difficulty was encountered at a depth of about fifty feet where it was found the children had inserted a piece of iron pipe measuring about thirty feet in length. This pipe the drillers were unable to remove so that the only recourse was to abandon the well and start digging another. The new well was started yesterday and will be sunk to a greater depth than the old one and it is expected that a generous supply of water will be secured, sufficient to give the swimming tank on the lot a plentiful uspply.

E. W. Pereira, with his wife and four children, arrived at the West Sacramento Auto Camp yesterday from Ft. Jones, Siskiyou County. They expect to stay a week or more with Mr. Pereira's brother and family and then proceed to San Francisco and other bay points to finish a vacation of a month or more.

M. F. Doyle of the Fifth Street Service Station, with his family, has returned from a vacation of over two weeks spent at Santa Cruz. Doyle is an expert swimmer and before his return from the beach was showing some of the lifesavers near the Casino at Santa Cruz how easy it is to save a drowning person. At any rate he returned to his home here with a wonderful coat of tan and so full of pep that he was scarcely recognizable by his friends.

Joe Marty and wife have returned from a vacation spent at Santa Cruz and have again left home to visit friends and relatives in Winnemucca, Nevada.

Before Judge Barry last Tuesday, three vagrants arrested in the jungles south of the M St. bridge appeared for sentence on complaint of Constable Buckingham. Manuel Bello, a young Mexican about twenty years of age made claim that he was not a drug addict but that he was unfortunately drawn into the company of Tom Mosher and Nettie Hammond, both confirmed drug addicts. These two latter victims of prohibition were recognized by Deputy Sheriff Ogle of Sacramento as being old offenders, Mosher having lately been released from the Sacramento County jail after serving time as a drug addict. All three were sentenced to sixty days in the county jail at Woodland to see if they could not release themselves from the grip of the drug fiend.

Mrs. George Beale and children returned last Sunday from a vacation of a month spent at Santa Cruz. They report having had a splendid time and being greatly benefitted by their trip to the seashore.

Last Monday Constable Buckingham discovered a Chevrolet automobile outside the levee at a point about two blocks north of Rocky Point. The car had been stripped of everything removable even to the tires and rims and had been deliberately turned down the levee to roll into the river after it had been robbed. On account of the low stage of the stream the car failed to get far into the river. The car was owned by Mrs. Clara Goldstein and was registered from 313 K Street, Sacramento. The work of robbery was done during the previous night and no clue has yet been found as to who committed the deed.

Homer Lee, an old resident of Washington, but at the present time residing in North Sacramento, has been laid up at his home during the past two weeks with heart trouble. Last Tuesday his condition was very much improved and he expects to return to his work in the Southern Pacific shops in the near future.

Mrs. J. P. Floris has been extremely busy during the past week making arrangements for a bazaar that is to be given by the Women of Mooseheart of Sacramento. This fiesta will take place on October 18th in the Native Sonst' Hall, and elaborate preparations are being made to make it successful. It is the intention of the women to raise a fund for the California Mooseheart Building and to raise those funds through socials nad other social entertainments. Besides Mrs. Floris on the board of arrangements are Miss Agnes Weedman, Mrs Mary Starkey and Bertha Moer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank De Riso Jr. have moved from Third Street to their newly completed home on the corner of Fourth and E Streets.

Mrs. I. K. Manchester and Mrs. A. A. Dassonville have returned after spending a few days visiting relatives and friends in Tres Pinos. They were accompanied on the trip to Tres Pinos by the Misses Joyce and Helen Kiff, who reside in that city.

Mrs. A. L. Case will have charge of the second grade of the Washington School, when it reopens in September, until Miss Hilda Watkins returns from Europe, where she is detained by the sickness of her father. Miss Watkins is the regular teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Travis of Watsonville are visiting in Washington as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Baglin.

WASHINGTON BOOSTERS' CLUB WILL NOT MEET NEXT TUESDAY ON ACCOUNT OF ELECTION

Owing to the fact that next Tuesday is election day and that the election board will be busy counting votes in the town hall it was decided last Tuesday evening that no meeting would be held on that date.

The meeting last Tuesday was made interesting to those present by the appearance of Eli Fourness, candidate for supervisor from this district of Yolo County.

After the regular business of the club was transacted, Mr. Fourness was given an opportunity to tell the members what he proposed doing if elected to the position.

He was given a very attentive hearing and thoroughly explained what he intended to do as well as telling those present what he had done for the citizens of the community and for the town of Washington during his many years of residence in this section.

Fourness has been trustee of Reclamation District No. 875 for several years and pointed to the fact that as such trustee he voted to give the town of Washington $1,000 to help in the raising of the Front Street levee which was up for consideration a few years ago.

He also advised those present that he had been mainly instrumental in the building of the town hall and in forming the first volunteer fire department. He claimed credit for promoting the construction of the county highway between the Southern Pacific bridge and Riverbank.

Another new member of the club was John Grote, who advised those present that another automobile camp is about to be started on the McClatchy place north of town and that it would be equipped with all the modern conveniences that go to make camp life comfortable. Grote and Fourness promised to join the club and help along in the deliberations as well as the work of the organization to boost the town.

The secretary of the club reported that a written complaint had been made to the State Board of Health about the nuisances that threaten the sanitation of the town and which are located on the river between the two bridges. This complaint is to be used by the Board of Health in forcing authorities on both sides of the stream to take action for the removal or remedying of those nuisances.

The recommendation made by the club sometime ago that a watchman be placed by the Board of School Trustees to take care of the public school building at least until after vacation period had not been acted upon so far as the committee in charge was able to ascertain. As secretary of the school trustees, Fred White was reported to have gone to Woodland to place the question before the Board of Supervisors so that the tax levy might be corrected to provide the employment of a night watchman for the public school building.

At a previous meeting it was decided that the members of the club who had been out of town on their vacations should give an account of their wanderings on their return. Responding to the invitation last Tuesday night Mrs. J. McNevin gave an interesting talk on the wonderful time she had at Santa Cruz, while Joe Pereira described his trip to Siskiyou County in an eloquent manner.

Perhaps the most interesting recital was that made by Mrs. A. M. Cameron who not only told where she had been during her vacation but had a written account of the trip she and her husband made, first, down through the Mother Lode to San Andreas, Moaning Cave at Vallecita, the Calaveras Big Trees and other points of national interest in the locality. From the Big Trees they went to Murphy's and Silver Lake, and thence over Ebert's Pass and Kit Carson Pass to Lake Tahoe, where they stayed several days. From there they went to Mono Lake, Eagle Falls and Carson Valley and Bridgeport. Then down over Tioga Pass at an elevation of 9941 feet via Tuolumne Meadows and into Yosemite Valley. At Camp Curry they spent several days, after which they proceeded to Santa Cruz.

Other members of the club will be invited to make similar recitals on future occasions.

CHARGE OF ASSAULT AGAINST JACKSICH DISMISSED

Before Judge Barry last Saturday Jerry Jacksich appeared under a charge sworn to by A. V. Nunes of the Lisbon district for attempt to commit murder.

From testimony given at the trial it appears that Nunes has been allowing his stock to run on the alfalfa field of Jacksich and various protests have not been effective in holding Nunes' stock out of Jacksich's alfalfa field. When protest was made by Jacksich it appeared that Nunes threatened him with a shovel and was accompanied by Frank Mattos armed with a club.

Jacksich fearing bodily harm ran to his automobile where a shotgun was lying and picking up the gun made a motion to defend himself.

Nunes and Mattos made a quick retreat although the gun was not loaded.

District Attorney George T. Kern prosecuted the case while the defendant's case was held by Martin I. Welsh of Sacramento.

After considering the testimony of several witnesses, Judge Barry decided that Jacksich was not guilty of the assault claimed and dismissed the case against him.

J. E. Lynn, director of the board of education of Sacramento, moved that the use of the high school be permitted the Methodist Church for an entertainment at which admission would be charged.

And yet Lynn is the only Catholic on the board.

HENRY LEINBERGER WILL CELEBRATE 94TH BIRTHDAY NEXT TUESDAY

Next Tuesday, August 26th, Henry Leinberger will celebrate his 94th birthday at his home in Washington.

Although past the allotted time of three score and ten Leinberger is still hale and hearty and as an evidence of his physical condition it might be said that last Wednesday he made a trip with his grandson, Walter Leinberger, on a heavy truck more than 100 miles.

Henry Leinberger is still deeply interested in the butchering business in which he has been engaged for over sixty years. Walter had occasion to go to Clarksburg early in the morning to take to the slaughter house in Washington a load of young calves. His grandfather accompanied him.

Delivering the load at the slaughter house, they started again for Knights Landing and after taking up a load of stock from the ranch of Supervisor Frank B. Edson, they returned to Washington before sundown.

Although Walter Leinberger is a young, hearty man, he was tired on returning from this long trip and yet his grandfather, nearly 94 years of age, made no complaint after this strenuous trip.

Henry Leinberger still reads the daily paper just as regularly as he eats his meals. Never a day passes that he does not make his regular rounds of the business being particularly interested in the work at the slaughter house. While he does not actually engage in the work, he sees that it is properly done and that the premises are properly guarded and kept in sanitary condition.

Nearly every day he crosses the bridge to Sacramento to visit his old friends and seldom does he use any conveyance. He walks the distance without trouble.

Leinberger was born in Germany but came to this country at an early age, where he engaged in butchering in the eastern states.

Coming to California when Yolo County was yet a wilderness and no levees were built along the Sacramento River, he engaged in stock trading for over sixty years and his many friends are wishing him well and hoping that he may continue to pass the century before relinquishing the good things of life.

Since 1990, residence address information has been restricted for release to other government agencies, insurance companies and financial institutions possessing waivers singed by their customers. Address are provided to attorneys involved in motor vehicle litigation, to automobile dealers for registration transactions, and to manufacturers using the information for automotive safety recalls.

Finally, the law permits release of registration or driver license information to companies for research. Those receiving this information must agree under threat of criminal sanctions that no one on the list will be contacted, and that the information obtained will not be released in a way that identifies any person.

I would like to assure our customers that the department does everything possible to maintain record confidentiality and security. I can't emphasize enough that DMV does not sell address lists or any other information for the purpose of direct marketing or sales solicitation.

I hope this letter helps our customers clearly understand the department's role in maintaining driver and vehicle registrations, and its equally important duty to prevent undesirable intrusion in to these records.
